US Average Number of Incidents Per Square Mile: 4.87418300182, equates to roughly 1 incident per 0.205 square miles or 0.453 miles (about 2,392 feet)!

Now, here are some things to take into consideration as to the methodology and the "county-by-county" rate:

#1. The number of incidents per county solely depend on each State's minute, hourly, daily, and yearly rate.

#2. The incidents that happen don't just happen one county at a time, in an hour it's multiple counties at a time and it's simultaneously happening all round.

#3. When it comes to the method of Roast Game Casualty murder per county (which I don't need to measure), it will solely depend on frequency and incidence rate.

#4. The county with the most incidents per state, will be victimized in most frequently.

#5. The county with the least incidents per state, will be victimized in the least.
